Take a walk through any town or city centre and you will come across rough sleepers and the homeless. But why are they homeless? Why don't they get their acts together? Why don't they get jobs and housing like everyone else?

But think about it. What sort of impression would you make at a job interview if you'd not been able to have a wash for a week or change your clothes for a month? And that wouldn't even scratch the surface of why you were homeless in the first place.

With a screenplay based on real case histories, Down & Out is a gritty and dynamic feature with arguments a plenty, evictions, a death and a rape, yet it's surprisingly emotional too.

Featuring a terrific pro cast led by Robbie Manners, Mark Haldor, Heidi Robinson and Carol May, Down & Out is being filmed almost entirely on location in 4K with a Dolby surround sound audio track for FHD release in late autumn.

Targeted at on-line streaming broadcast including Prime Video (Amazon), Down & Out is a dynamic zero budget movie with plenty of action to create awareness and raise funds for homeless charities.
